St. John's Church

Dedicated in 1874

St. John's Parish

Until the year 1871 the faithful Catholics of Peabody worshipped at St. James Church in Salem. Father Gray, then pastor of St. James, had purchased the land in the rear of Chestnut Street from Thomas E. Proctor for the sum of $10,000.

In May, 1871, ground was broken for St. John's Church. It was to be constructed of brick with granite trimmings, in length 146 feet and in width 73 feet, with a spire 158 feet high, and the style of architecture was to be Gothic.

The laying of the cornerstone took place on Sunday afternoon, August 20, 1871. Most Reverend John J. Williams, then Bishop of Boston officiated and Reverend Isaac T. Hecker of New York preached the sermon.

On Christmas day, 1871, Father Gray celebrated the first Mass in the basement of the Church. However, it was not until September of 1872 that the Church was opened again for public worship, when the basement was completed and the pews arranged in place. In December, 1874, Father Gray preached his farewell sermon, recommending to the people Reverend Michael J. Masterson, who became the first pastor of the now established parish, on December 10, 1874.

In 1878 work on the interior of the Church was begun and was finished in 1879. On November 30 of that year, St. John's Church was dedicated with a pontifical high Mass, celebrated by Most Reverend Lawrence McMahon, Bishop of Hartford, and the three marble altars were consecrated at that time. It was during the pastorate of Father Masterson that the school, convent and rectory were built. A great debt of gratitude is owed Father Masterson and the parishioners of St. John's during those early years. His foresight and their sacrifices made possible the beautiful Church property we have today.

On November 20, 1910, after thirty-six years as the spiritual guide of Peabody's Catholics, Father Masterson passed to his Eternal reward.

The Reverend Nicholas J. Murphy succeeded Father Masterson, being appointed pastor of St. John's on December 4, 1910.

The parish, and in fact the world, was horrified and saddened at the terrible tragedy of the school fire, which occurred on Thursday, October 28, 1915. Surmounting their grief and encouraged by a lively faith and realizing the vital need in their lives for Catholic education, the parishioners rallied together and the school was rebuilt in 1916.

In July, 1920, Father Murphy left St. John's to become pastor of St. Anthony's Church in Allston. He was succeeded by the Reverend Thomas P. McGinn, who came to Peabody from St. Mary's Church in Ayer, Massachusetts. Father McGinn remained as pastor until his death on November 30, 1927.

Reverend W. George Mullin then became pastor of St. John's in January, 1928. In November of that year ground was broken for a mission in South Peabody, which is now St. Ann's Parish today. Father Mullin died December 14, 1937 and was succeeded by Reverend John R. McCool, who had been pastor of the Star of the Sea Church in East Boston.

Father McCool purchased the Masterson house on Chestnut Street, renovated it so that it could be used as the meeting place of small parish groups. During his years as pastor, the entire interior of the Church was renovated and decorated as it is today. Father McCool died on October 6, 1943.

Hitherto, by strange coincidence, the names of all the pastors of St. John's Church had begun with the letter M. This tradition was shattered when on October 27, 1943, our present beloved pastor, Reverend Henry C. Reardon, was appointed to St. John's. Under Father Reardon the school has grown by leaps and bounds. It has been thoroughly modernized with a two-way loud speaking system contacting every room from the Superior's office. The most up-to-date business machines have been purchased for the training of the Commercial students. All parish property has been cared for so that on this seventy-fifth anniversary, due to the splendid cooperation of the parishioners with Father Reardon, St. John's Parish is the flourishing center of Catholic activity in Peabody.
